Introduction

This Bibliography has been produced as a resource for researchers into Gloucester’s history and archaeology. It will hopefully make some of the lesser-known works more accessible, as well as the specialist contributions to larger volumes.

Format

The Bibliography falls into three main sections.
Section 1: Alphabetised listing of authors and works.
Section 2: Listing of works under selected topographic and thematic keywords.
Section 3: Bibliography in computerised format, with the ability to undertake individual, tailored, searches.

The Computer Disk

The disk contains the bibliographic data, prepared under the PAPYRUS Bibliographic System. It is supplied complete with the PAPYRUS RETRIEVER program, which allows further interrogation of the data.

Introduction to the 2011 revised edition

This edition follows a request, in the February 2011 Newsletter, from the B&GAS Gloucester Research Panel for a volunteer to update the Archaeological and Historical Bibliography of Gloucester compiled by Malcolm Atkin in 1993.

No version of the computer disk was available when work on this edition commenced so the following work derives from paper copies.

It was agreed to retain as much of Malcolm’s work as possible unless there is a very good reason to the contrary. However, some changes have been made during the revision.

The Council for British Archaeology’s standard list of abbreviated titles of current periodicals and series has been adopted in place of the abbreviations used in the 1993 edition.

The Keyword Index has been retained with a few more categories created. The principal change being that POST-MEDIEVAL is now roughly 1500-1700 with 18th, 19th and 20th CENTURY being added.

The bibliography, for the most part, only includes published works to the end of 2010 which means that archaeological grey literature that has been produced as a result of developer funded fieldwork, most of which has been undertaken since 1993, has not been included. [That may be found by referring to http://www.oasis.ac.uk/england/] Likewise, the references that are printed annually in TBGAS Archaeological Review have not been reproduced.

Bearing in mind that the bibliography contains both archaeological and historical titles, only those historical titles that refer directly to archaeological features, including buildings, have been added. Thus papers about individual abbots, bishops [and Robert Curthose] are included as they are linked to the Cathedral. Likewise histories of firms such as Moreland’s and the Gloucester Railway Carriage & Wagon Company are included as the buildings to some extent still exist even if the companies are long gone.

It is published by the Dutch Archaeological and Historical Society, an independent body of Dutch scholars in the field of Mediterranean archaeology, Classical and Ancient Near Eastern philology and Ancient History. The journal focuses on the study of the Ancient world in its widest sense, including Classical and Near Eastern philology, art history and the archaeology and ancient history of the Mediterranean world and the Near East. The supplementum ponticum and the supplementum epigraphicum mediterraneum offer a range of studies in the archaeology and history of the Black Sea region and the va Historical archaeology has an ambivalent relationship with chronology and typology. Their archive and patrimony are the stacked volumes of the journal Historical Archaeology, and the debates over ceramic classifications, patterns in artifact assemblages that can be read as typical of plantation slavery or culture contact, or the Georgian Order as manifestation of a worldview diagnostic of emerging colonial identities. But as several contributors to this volume show, attention to identifying patterns, world-views, and orders can sacrifice process to the interpretation of history and the awareness of change to classification and stasis.
